

President Confers Quietly With General Johnson On Future of NRA

WASHINGTON—President Roosevelt is quietly consulting General Hugh Johnson on the future of the NRA. He has had one secret conference with the former Blue Eagle ruler on the matter, indicated he expects to talk with him again before a final decision is reached.

At the first closely guarded meeting, Johnson reiterated his old objection to the idea of a board in charge of NRA affairs.

The one-time army officer told the President that multi-command was unsuited for the NRA. He held that effective administrative control could only be obtained by vesting responsibility in one individual.

Johnson urged that in the permanent NRA set-up an executive be installed at the top with an advisory board of assistants under him.

This is exactly the reverse of the present NRA administrative structure.

Furthermore, Johnson's plan was rejected by the President as early as last Summer when he accepted the Perkins-Richberg formula of a board to be in charge, plus an administrative officer functioning under it.

Not Guilty

Officials of the Treasury Department were discussing the importance of having as District Attorney for Southern New York an A-1 man who would know to prosecute the many cases which the Treasury has before the courts.

"Sixty per cent of all the criminal cases in New York—drugs, boot-legging, smuggling—originate with us," remarked Guy T. Helvering, Commissioner of Internal Revenue.

"Of course," he added quickly, "that doesn't mean the crimes involve Treasury officers."

Old Age

One of the highest-powered lobbying influences that Congress will feel this winter is that of a mild-mannered, soft-spoken, retired country doctor, 68 years old.

F. E. Townsend, author of the plan for old age revolving pensions, has moved from Long Beach, Calif., to Washington, bringing along evidence to show that twelve million people are behind him.

That many names have been signed by oldsters all over the country to Townsend petitions, The lean-faced physician declares:

"Our organization is one of the most potent political clubs in the world. A word from headquarters to our various centers is all that's necessary to smother Congress with petitions and telegrams."

Beginning with the West Coast Congressmen, who, he says, are already in the bag, Townsend expects to camp on the steps of the Capitol until his pension legislation is passed.

Called by aged admirers "a second Moses," Dr. Townsend is a man of lowly origin. Born in a log cabin on the Wabash, he practiced medicine among the sheep and cattle ranchers of the Black Hills of South Dakota. Moving to California, he took a job in the Long Beach Health Department, attending indigent patients, whose needs touched his sympathies.

Ousted from his job by political reorganization a year ago, he had plenty of time to ponder the mis-

10-YEAR RECOVERY PLAN DEVISED

MILTON MORRIS, DEAN OF BAR, DIES AT 83

LAWYER SINCE 1875 CALLED; RITES TUESDAY

Arterio Sclerosis Fatal to Venerable Native of Walnut-twp

WIDOW SURVIVES

Obtained Legal Education Under P. C. Smith

Milton Morris, 83, last of that venerable triumvirate which included the late Judges L. N. Abernethy and Clarence Curtin, succumbed at his home, 478 N. Court-st., Saturday at 10:23 p. m. He had been failing for several years, arterio sclerosis causing death.

Mr. Morris was a lifetime resident of Pickaway-co. He was born in Walnut-twp Jan. 11, 1851, a son of John Morris and Della Bowman.

He is survived by his widow, Elizabeth Crist Morris, to whom he was married April 9, 1874; a son, Wellington C. Morris, realtor; a grandson, Milton Everett Morris, and two sisters, Mrs. Noah A. Warner and Miss Sophia Morris, both of this city.

FUNERAL TUESDAY

The funeral will be conducted Tuesday at 2:30 p. m. at the W. H. Albaugh Co. chapel with Rev. E. A. Fowler of the Linden Heights Methodist Episcopal church officiating. His remains will be interred in Forest cemetery.

Active pallbearers will include C. C. Chapplear, Max C. Seyfert, Jr., E. L. Tolbert, George E. Roth, Meeker Terwilliger, H. B. Weaver, William Hamilton and Robert G. Colville.

Mr. Morris, who had served as eminent commander of Scioto Commandery Knights Templar, was a member of the first class of Masons to receive the Knights Templar degree in this city.

Born on a farm in Walnut-twp, Milton Morris' early education was gained in the public schools. He did not have the advantage of a university education but at the age of 24 was admitted to practice law before the bar of Ohio after reading in the office of the late Palmer C. Smith.

Two years after passing the bar examination Mr. Morris became a partner of Mr. Smith and this partnership existed until 1900 when the senior member passed away. Mr. Morris had practiced alone since that time.

ACTIVE IN CIVIC LIFE

Mr. Morris served for a number of years as local counsel for the Norfolk & Western Railway Co. and for the old Cincinnati & Muskingum Valley Railroad Co. He was a stockholder and director of the Third National bank for a number of years and was attorney for that organization until his health began to fail. He was also an officer and director of the Scioto Canning Co. at one time and also served as vice president of the Circleville Ice Co.

The deceased came to Circleville in 1871 at which time he became attached to the sheriff's office where he remained two years; he then served as deputy clerk of courts and also a deputy in the auditor's office prior to becoming an attorney.

Mr. Morris, Mr. Abernethy and Mr. Curtin were always held in high esteem by their colleagues in the legal business. All were able and stalwart attorneys. Mr. Abernethy and Mr. Curtin both succumbed in the last few years.

GRANDSON OF SETTLER

Mr. Morris' grandfather was John Morris, an early settler in Pickaway-co, having come here from New Jersey in 1802.

The body will lie in state at the Albaugh chapel until the hour of service.

ORGANIZATIONS TO

VIEW MORRIS BODY

Scioto Commandery Knights Templar will meet at the lodge asylum Tuesday at 2 p. m. to attend the funeral of Milton Morris at the Albaugh chapel.

Members of the Pickaway-co bar association will meet at 8:15 p. m. Monday to view the body of Milton Morris.

Pardon for Nesbitt?

Jacob C. Nesbitt

Reports that Jacob C. Nesbitt, serving a life sentence in Ohio penitentiary for the "bathtub slaying" of his wife at Troy, O., would be given a Christmas pardon by Gov. George White caused protests in Nesbitt's home town. Judge W. D. Jones, who sentenced him in 1926, and L. E. Harvey, prosecutor of the case, declared they would not recommend Nesbitt's release. Nesbitt, trusty and model prisoner, has been acting as chauffeur for John McSweeney, state welfare director.

TWO ARMY MEN DIE IN PLANE

Son of Commander of United States Fleet; Motorists Endangered.

BURLINGAME, Cal., Dec. 17.—Crushed in their flaming plane when it crashed on the crowded bayshore highway near here, two army airmen, one the son of Admiral Joseph J. Reeves, commander-in-chief of the United States fleet, were dead today.

They were Lieut. William Cunningham Reeves, 25, and Sergeant L. A. Peterson, 27, flight mechanic, of Herring, Okla.

Swooping suddenly out of low clouds, their plane brushed the top of an automobile, struck a high tension pole, and exploded in flames.

The searing heat precluded any effort to rescue the men.

Their crash imperiled hundreds of motorists returning from the Bay Meadows races. Two automobiles were showered with wreckage.

It was believed Reeves, piloting the plane, had chosen to strike the power wires rather than crash into one of the bungalows lining the highway.

Low clouds and rain which blinded the airmen were blamed for the accident by army air officers.

Reeves' plane, in company with one piloted by Lieut. George McIntyre, had taken off from Los Angeles yesterday noon, enroute to Crissy field, San Francisco, where Reeves was stationed.

OHIOAN IS KILLED

GALLIPOLIS, Dec. 17.—Searching for a motive, police here today investigated a fight in the home of Thomas H. Steele, a farmer near Coalton, which resulted in Steele's death Sunday and left Charles Plummer, 56, in a hospital seriously wounded.

Steele, 78, died from a blow on the head with a heavy coal mine drill. Sheriff Preston Turner of Jackson said.

One version of the fight, as given to deputy sheriffs, declared that a quarrel started while the two men were drinking, and that Steele fired twice into Plummer's body as the younger man hit him over the head with the drill. Liquor was found in Steele's home and barn. Sheriff Turner said.

24-HOUR TELEGRAPH SERVICE PROVIDED

C. W. Clark of the Western Union announced today that it has opened a branch in the Norfolk & Western tower which will be open at all hours to handle telegraph business.

However, the only hours in which wires may be sent through the N. & W. office are those after the regular office has closed at 7 p. m. each day and on Sunday.

In this manner 24 hour service is provided.

SOME STORES TO OPEN, SOME CLOSE

Some of Circleville's business houses will be open tonight and every evening this week until Christmas while others will not remain open in the evenings until Wednesday.

The closing hour of 9 o'clock has been established.

It is impossible to list those who will be opened and those closed.

SOVIET 'COUP' IS BROKEN UP

Plot to Place Government Under Soviet Regime Ended by Police

BUENOS AIRES, Dec. 17.—A nation-wide revolutionary plot to place all Argentina under a Soviet regime was broken up overnight with the arrest of three hundred Communists in and around the capital, police announced today.

The conspiracy, according to police, had ramifications throughout the country, and more arrests in several provinces are expected.

WORKED THROUGH SCHOOLS

Detectives unearthed the plot, it was learned, when they traced to its source the flood of Communist literature which has been sent for several months to all school teachers.

Police were extremely reluctant to reveal any details about the program for overthrowing the government, although a formal communique was promised later.

It was understood, however, that subversive influences had been hard at work in the army, in the hope that a sufficient number of armed troops could be won over for the coup.

This movement, it was said, was not connected with recent abortive rebellions in Santa Fe and other provinces.

SOFIA, Dec. 17.—Five hundred persons, including 175 soldiers were under arrest today following the unmasking of a huge plot by Communists to seize control of the Bulgarian army.

Units stationed at Chaskovo, where the arrests were made, planned to seize all the arms and kill the officers, officials said that seized documents revealed.

AIRIED BY ARREST

Police first learned of the alleged plot upon the arrest of George Stoeff, Communist leader, who recently led a band of Reds into the town of Ostretz, looting the public treasury and robbing richer peasants.

Reeves' plane, in company with one piloted by Lieut. George McIntyre, had taken off from Los Angeles yesterday noon, enroute to Crissy field, San Francisco, where Reeves was stationed.

FEDERAL MEN CATCH BURNS; TRAIL OTHERS

Man Who Fled Prison With Dillinger Wanted In Armored Car Theft

GIVES INFORMATION

Believe Hamilton and Fox Near Arrest

CHICAGO, Dec. 17.—Captured in a swift, bloodless raid on his South side hideout, Joseph Burns, 33, one of the last surviving members of the original John Dillinger gang, was being grilled today by federal inspectors as a suspect in the $427,000 Brooklyn armored car robbery Aug. 21.

While the questioning was being carried on in secret raiding police squads were held in readiness to effect the capture of John Hamilton and Joseph Fox, the only two Dillinger gang veterans still at large. Their arrests were imminent, it was hinted by Supervising Police Captain John Stege.

After hours of ceaseless questioning Burns was believed to have divulged important information concerning the hideout of Hamilton, Fox and Alvin Karpis, the latter a suspect in the $200,000 ransom kidnapping of Edward Bremer, St. Paul banker.

ARSENAL CONFISCATED

Thirty policemen and federal agents led by Capt. Stege, captured Burns in his West 69th street flat, without a struggle. Within reach of the gangster were two machine guns, two automatic pistols and three rifles, but Burns chose to surrender peacefully.

Searching the flat, officers found an old magazine on which was scrawled some figures—

CABINET LISTS PUBLIC WORKS; GIVEN TO FDR

Far - Reaching Program Drafted; Nation's Assets Are Listed

TO USE 10 BILLIONS

Develop All Resources, Planners Say

WASHINGTON, Dec. 17.—The most far-reaching, long-range economic planning "anti-depression" programs ever drafted, and containing a complete inventory of the nation's assets, was presented to President Roosevelt today.

It was written by the national resources board, composed of cabinet heads. Its recommendations call for the expenditure of upwards from 26 billion dollars by federal, state and local governments on public works during the next 10 years, and its suggestions call for development of almost every conceivable field, affecting every section of the land and benefiting virtually every man, woman and child.

PROVIDE EMPLOYMENT

Headed by Secretary of the Interior Ickes, the board's objective in presenting its long-range planning scheme to include all the national resources—waterways, electric power, agriculture, and minerals is to provide employment and to lessen the effect of future depressions.

Its chief proposal is to have congress legislate the public works administration into a permanent agency backed by a federal fund of ten billions of dollars to finance a gigantic public works program during the next six years.

"Extension of public works into new fields, and expansion of all public works, old and new, into the field of reasonable possibility from point of view of needful public service," the report said, "brings the estimate of magnitude

About This And That

BY THE SECOND GUESSER

"OFFICIAL ALL-STAR"

What might be termed an "official" all-American football team was announced Sunday by the Cleveland Plain Dealer writer, John Dietrich. His team was picked by totaling votes received by players from all who chose such mythical teams. For instance if Collier's picked Pug Lund for first team that gave Lund one vote in the consensus—fourteen all-American teams are taken as the basis for the selections.

The team and their votes (first team votes only counting): Ends; Larson, Minnesota, 9, and Hutson, Alabama, 7. Tackles; Monahan, Ohio State, 7; Lee, Alabama, 5. Guards; Hartwig, Pitt, 10; Bevan, Minnesota, 6. Center; Robinson, Notre Dame, 6. Quarterback; Grayson, Stanford, 13. Halfbacks; Lund, Minnesota, 12; Borries, Navy, 9. Fullback; Howell, Alabama, 6.

PICKENS' SELECTIONS

Bob Pickens, who has seen football games far and near, especially those in which Notre Dame played comes through today with some selections that take their place with the best. His all-American includes; Moscrip of Stanford and Larson of Minnesota, ends; Lee of Alabama and Barclay of North Carolina, tackles; Hartwig of Pitt and Bevan of Minnesota, guards; Robinson of Notre Dame, center; Purvis of Purdue, Nicksick of Pitt, Weinstein of Pitt and Shakespeare of Notre Dame, halfbacks.

He also names a team from players he has actually seen in action this year including: Vairo of Notre Dame and Ward of Michigan, ends; Brooke of Colgate and Hamrick of Ohio State, tackles; Hartwig of Pitt and Monahan of Ohio State, guards; Robinson of Notre Dame, center; Purvis of Purdue, Nicksick of Pitt, Weinstein of Pitt and Shakespeare of Notre Dame, halfbacks.

His rating of leading teams includes:

1. Minnesota.
2. Pittsburgh.
3. Alabama.
4. Stanford.
5. Ohio State.
6. Colgate.
7. Notre Dame.
8. Navy.
9. Louisiana State.

Groveport Shows Quite An Offense In Second Half; Tigers Crippled.

Handicapped by the absence of forward Kirwin and guard Speakman the New York Giants were beaten 29-20 by Groveport in an out-of-town game Saturday evening. Replacements for this pair were not quite up to snuff and as a result a Groveport forward, Weaver, broke loose in the second half to drop five action shots through the bucket to win.

The Red and Black, after a hard game Friday night, led 10-7 at the end of the half but Groveport did most of the playing in the second half.

Henry led the Tiger scorers with two action shots and four free throws.

Vic Kolb, Ohio Wesleyan, did a nice job of officiating.

MISS COURTRIGHT HONOR GUEST AT LUNCHEON-BRIDGE

Another charming affair honoring Miss Peggy Courtright, E. Mound-st, bride-elect of Mr. John Blosser of Chillicothe was the luncheon-bridge given by Mrs. George Banning of Columbus and Mrs. Lemuel Weldon, N. Court-st, this city, Saturday at Mrs. Banning's home.

Luncheon was served at 1 o'clock at prettily appointed tables and the pleasure of the luncheon hour was continued throughout the afternoon spent in bridge.

With the awarding of prizes to Miss Cyrus Huling, Miss Evelyn Adkins and Miss Catherine Smith an attractive guest prize was presented Miss Courtright.

Enjoying the delightful party were Miss Courtright, Miss Evelyn Adkins, Miss Ann Bennett, Mrs. William Criswell, Misses Evangelina and Catherine Smith, Miss Kathryn May, Misses Marion and Helen Hitler, this city; Miss Jane Brown of Chillicothe; Miss Flora Powell, Mrs. Robert J. Brunner, Miss Frances Huling, Miss Ruth Pryor, Mrs. Cyrus Huling and Miss Esther Nailor of Columbus.

ELKS TO SPONSOR ANNUAL NEW YEAR'S EVE DANCE

The entertainment committee of the local Elks' lodge has engaged Dick Weaver and his orchestra of Dayton for the annual New Year's Eve dance at the club.

This eleven-piece band has a reputation as an unusually good dance orchestra. The hours are announced from 10:30 to 3 o'clock.

The committee plans to make this dance an outstanding event in the holiday season.

Ben H. Gordon is chairman of the entertainment committee and will be ably assisted by its other members.

Another holiday dance always largely attended is the Mistletoe dance to be held at the Memorial hall Wednesday, Dec. 26.

Ralph Lloyd and his eleven-piece band will play from 10 until 2 o'clock.

Miss Evelyn Adkins is chairman of this event.

MISS ALSOP VISITS COUNTY GIRL SCOUTS

Miss Patricia Alsop, national field worker of the Girl Scout organization, has just concluded a survey of the Girl Scout movement in Circleville and Pickaway-co. Although the county has no organization besides lone troops, the increasing number of scouts will eventually make some team-work among the leaders a necessity.

As a result of Miss Alsop's visit, the formation of a new troop is being planned, under the leadership of Miss Catherine Smith and Miss Margaret Rooney. Application for membership in the prospective troop may be made with either one of the new leaders by girls of scout age.

It is also hoped that troop No. 2 may be reorganized in the near future under the leadership of Mrs. Karl Mason and Miss Ethel Kirocher.

MISS HASWELL ON YOUTH PROGRAM

Miss Mary May Haswell, S. Pickaway-st, attended a youth meeting at the Grandview Congregational church Sunday and took part on the program.

She sang a vocal number, "Cantique De Noel," on the program following a splendid address by Rev. Roy A. Burkhardt of the International Council of Religious Education.

Miss Haswell was a guest of Miss Mary Grace Scanlen.

PATTERN 9216

Young, gay and debonair is this charming afternoon dress—topped by a flattering collar which looks, for all the world, like a little boy's collar turned around backwards. A great deal of the chic of this frock is due to the way the bodice is shirred on to a wide over-the-shoulder yoke to give the peasant-effect which is so very much in vogue these days. The nice slim panel, fronting the skirt, breaks into inverted pleats to give plenty of freedom for the times when you go dancing. And you can make the frock with its graceful sleeves caught at the wrist into pretty cuffs or, if you prefer, omit the cuffs and the sleeves finished with elastic may be pushed above the elbows.

Pattern 9216 may be ordered only in sizes 12, 14, 16, 18 and 20. Size 16 requires 3½ yards 39 inch fabric and ¾ yard contrasting.

Send FIFTEEN CENTS in coins or stamps (coins preferred) for EACH MARIAN MARTIN pattern. Be sure to write plainly your NAME, ADDRESS, the STYLE NUMBER and SIZE of each pattern.

Do not miss our WINTER PATTERN BOOK of smart, easy-to-make clothes designed by our style authority, MARIAN MARTIN. Styles for every age and all occasions. PRICE OF BOOK FIFTEEN CENTS. BOOK AND PATTERN TOGETHER TWENTY-FIVE CENTS.

Boys Take Long Lead in Hollywood Baby Parade

HOLLYWOOD, Dec. 17—The boys win.

And by a margin of nearly three to one.

Birth of a curly-haired, seven and one-half pound son to Clara Bow Sunday was the eleventh boy to be born to Hollywood screen couples, stork statistics for 1934 revealed today. During the year to date four girls arrived to gladden homes of cinema celebrities.

Both the mother, famous "It" girl of motion pictures, and the boy were going splendidly at Santa Monica hospital, while Rex Bell, the cowboy father who paced the floor through the night at the hospital was reported "doing as well as could be expected."

Both Rex and Clara were especially happy that their first child was a son. A pony already waits his first "giddyup" and a brand new nursery at their ranch home will receive the newcomer within a very short time. The Bells believe the ranch is the place to bring up a child.

It looked as though the girls were going to win the Hollywood stork race by a wide margin when the year started. First arrived Melinda at the home of Joan Bennett and Gene Markey last February.

Then came Mary Caroline to grace the home of Dorothy Jordan and Merian C. Cooper.

Robert Allen was the first male arrival of the year at the home of Billie Dove and Robert Kenaston.

Margaret Avourten boosted the score for the girls when she came to the home of Patricia and Pat O'Brien.

But a son at the home of Lina Basquette and Teddy Hayes put the boys back in the running.

A daughter at the home of Maxine Dalley Lewis and Donald Cook made the score four to two in favor of the ladies.

Dennis Michael and Philip Lang, twin arrivals July 13 at the home of Dixie Lee and Bing Crosby turned the tide definitely in favor of the boys.

Harry Joe, II, arrived to gladden the hearts of Sally Eilers and Harry Joe Brown.

Norman Scott was the stork's next delivery to Joan Blondell and George Barnes.

Timothy Andrew less than a month later arrived at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Andy Devine.

Richard arrived Dec. 13 at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Darryl Zanuck.

MAN HE AIDED ROBS DR. HARSHA

WASHINGTON C. H., Dec. 17—Dr. G. M. Harsha, former Fayette-co coroner, was robbed Saturday night by a man he tried to assist. The man appeared at Harsha's home and told him he lived in the country and his wife needed help. After traveling about eight miles the man told him: "This is a hold-up." The robber took Harsha's money and his car which he later wrecked near Bainbridge.

A BRIGHTER CHRISTMAS

FROM every front the Christmas news is cheerful. The swift flow of Christmas spending in years is swirling in on the nation's merchants. A survey shows that Christmas trade in many cities is at the high pitch of the 1929 and 1930 seasons and that in some localities it is 33 1-3 per cent above last year. Even sharper gains are expected in the next few days.

All of this, of course, comes under the general classification of glad tidings. In fact, it gives a peculiar appropriateness to the news from New England that the demand for trees is unprecedented. In Vermont alone, more than 1,200,000 trees were shipped, while in Maine and New Hampshire huge piles of trees were shipped south.

These are signs that many millions of Americans, young and old, will have a happier Christmas than they have enjoyed in several years. There are countless others, however, for whom the more fortunate members of society must make adequate provision if the Christmas spirit is to prevail in the land.

NOBEL PEACE AWARDS

FOR the first time in three years the Nobel peace prize is awarded. It is divided between Arthur Henderson, president of the World Disarmament Conference, and Sir Norman Angell, writer and lecturer. Neither of these gentlemen can point to a concrete accomplishment for peace, but both have been indefatigable workers in the cause. There has been no more consistent and tireless evangelist of peace than Norman Angell, while Mr. Henderson's struggle to bring results in the long-drawn-out disarmament conference entitles him to recognition.

It is difficult to say what is of permanent value to the solution of the peace problem. Activities which seem promising at the time, such as those of Briand and Stresemann, former prize winners, lose some of their luster in the ebb and flow of events. That may be temporary. Some one may pick up the thread where they left off, as there are now some signs of French and German statesmen building on the Locarno foundation. It is to be hoped that this will happen.

But even if this hope is to be deferred, those who labor untiringly, planting ideas of peace and nurturing them, are contributing to the solution that must be found some day. They have earned respect for their labors.

If he yearns for his wife to take some interest in his career, what he really wants is somebody to say: "Atta boy!"

Back in Bible times, it was customary to place all the blame on a goat instead of tonsils.

You don't plan failure. Just learn to feel sorry for yourself and let nature take its course.

A kindly providence seems to order things so that the winnings of the Irish Sweepstakes go to those who need them.

General Johnson's vocabulary is sadly missed in a land whose speech is unrelieved by a sufficient number of purple patches.

Revival of discussion of the maintenance of standards of living is encouraging. Until now most of us have been content to merely live.

It might be worse. We all differ on the outside, yet surgeons don't whittle us down to fit their idea of normal.

We are given to sectionalism and nothing is common to all regions except mortgages and a sock on the jaw.

CAROLINE by RUTH DEWEY GROVES

CHAPTER XXXV

"Will you go for a drive with me, sweetheart? I'm on a vacation, and it's a nice day. Be good for you to get out. We'll lunch in the country. And then I'll tell you my good news."

"Oh no, tell me now."

"Get your hat and coat. I'll tell you in the car."

Caroline delayed to give some instructions to Mrs. Stevenson but in a few minutes she was ready. Howard was glad to leave the house. In spite of all that Caroline and her mother had done to brighten it up he found it depressing. He would give a great deal, he thought, if Caroline were never coming back to it. With the thought came a glow of righteousness, which he did not analyze; and therefore did not dwell on it was his own love of comfort that inspired his generosity.

"We're going to look at a little old stone cottage at Lake Cloud," he said to her as they drove away. "And if you like it, Caro, we'll buy it in the spring. It's for sale very cheap. Everything is coming our way at last, sweetheart. Gwen's off for Reno and she isn't going to cause us any trouble. I've had a talk with Dad."

"Oh, Howard," Caroline broke in, "you mean he isn't going to oppose our marriage?"

The pause that preceded Howard's answer to Caroline's question was more enlightening than his words. "He isn't as down on me as you think," he said. "But of course," he added hastily, "he doesn't know all about it."

Caroline drew in a sharp breath. "All about what?" she asked. "Gwen or me?"

"About you, dear. I couldn't tell him. He believed, as it was, that I was to blame for all the trouble with Gwen—if he'd known about you I could never have convinced him that I wasn't."

"Well," Caroline asked, "aren't you, Howard? Aren't both of us to blame?"

"You know better than that," Howard answered shortly. "It's true, I haven't felt guilty about it. I wouldn't have left you if it hadn't been for me, would she?"

"I think she would," Howard said. "She told me she's in love with someone else, Caro."

"Oh!—well, I'm glad. I'll stop worrying about her now. I was a little, you know; but much right to our love as we believed. I've hated her, Howard, but I felt, after last night, that I might have been wrong."

"You were wasting your sympathy," Howard told her. "Gwen didn't go for our sakes. She wants to be free to marry again."

"That makes things better for you with your father, doesn't it?" "It saved the day for me. After Gwen got so hot about you she'd have done anything to injure us if she hadn't had good reason not to. She's trying to keep her dad sweet, too."

Caroline looked at him, with a twist of doubt on her lips. "Too?" she repeated. "Do you mean, Howard, that now you are to be free, you must consider your father above all else?"

"Not above all else, darling," Howard corrected, "but with all else. Surely you understand that. I'm just where I was before, as far as he's concerned, except that Gwen has made the break and Dad hasn't kicked me out. I thought you'd be pleased that things have gone so well," he added reproachfully.

"I am, dear," Caroline said, feeling ashamed of her nagging. "I know you're right—if we're to be sensible about it. But . . . well, never mind, tell me one thing. You don't think we've driven Gwen down into anything she'll regret, do you?" "What makes you so suddenly tender toward her?" Howard returned. "I assure you she doesn't feel the same toward you."

"I don't know," Caroline replied, "unless it's just that sorrow softens my heart. I know, really, that I haven't anything to thank her for, and yet I shouldn't want to be responsible for any trouble that comes to her."

"You won't be," Gwen can take care of herself. But I wish you'd be as considerate of me. You can save me a great deal of trouble and unhappiness just by standing with me against Dad."

Caroline sighed. "I'll try," she said, but there was no warmth in her voice. Deep in her heart she was still disappointed that Howard was not willing to defy his father for her sake.

"Tell me about the cottage at the lake," she said, forcing herself to sound enthusiastic.

"I think you'll like it," Howard responded. "It's old and tumble-down in places, but we can have a lot of fun remodeling it."

"How did you find it? Lake Cloud is so inaccessible."

"On a hunting trip," he laughed. "I do go hunting once in a while."

"I do go hunting once in a while," he said. "I was awfully out of the way for us—for you."

"Yes, it will," he acknowledged, "but Caro, honey, it won't be long before we can be married. Not long enough, I'm afraid, to make Dad see things our way. Just in case he doesn't . . . I thought . . . well, you should . . . I can be married anyway—and it's lovely in the summer at Lake Cloud. In the winter, if you got lonely, we could come back to town and take a small apartment for a few months. And in time everything is bound to come right."

"A secret marriage," Caroline said slowly. "It's a great risk," she added with a hint of sarcasm.

Howard did not catch it. "I know," he replied, "but I've got to take it. I won't wait any longer than I have to for you, sweetheart."

Caroline closed her eyes and remained silent, trying to hide from him the coldness she felt toward his proposal. It frightened her to feel about it. What if her mother had been right, and the piecemeal revelation of Howard's character should show her traits in it that she could not tolerate?

"Don't be a fool . . . don't go looking for pots of gold," she told herself. "What's wrong with a secret marriage?" Howard was right to expect her to consider his interests. Why shouldn't he have both her and his father's money? Wasn't she thinking too much of her own ideals? Wouldn't any girl who loved him want to help him?

Suddenly she put a hand on his arm. "I'm a terrible fraud," she said candidly. "Always thinking of myself and pretending it's high-mindedness. Forgive me, darling, and drive faster. It's a long way to Lake Cloud."

"I knew you'd come through for me!" Howard exclaimed happily. "You're the one person I can count on, Caro. But what do I have to forgive?"

Caroline was surprised that he shouldn't know, but she said only: "For not appreciating your cleverness in finding a way to outwit your father. It is a feather in your cap."

"Romantic, too," Howard supplied, and for the first time in her life Caroline felt that she had been stupid. But the old, stubborn loyalty of her first love for him came to prick at her conscience. She felt ashamed. "Always thinking of me on baiting him, criticizing him, would it end?"

Tears of repentance sprang into her eyes. His kindness deserved something better than this! How had she got into such a state of mind about him? She loved him, wanted nothing more than to be his wife, and yet every move he made to bring about the consummation of their happiness seemed to meet with her disapproval. It wasn't fair to him! She had said she drove him away from her in the first place. Why couldn't she remember that? And that she'd cried her heart out to have him back on any terms? Why couldn't she see that Howard's fortune was her fortune? Why couldn't she have security and ease more than a silly exhibition of independence? Certainly Howard would never be content in poverty—why expect him to be miserable just so that she might feel she had inspired a story book love?

She leaned against him, yielding. Howard put an arm around her long enough to draw her closer. He became expansive with satisfaction. "We'll have a honeymoon trip before we settle down at the lake," he said happily. "I'll get at least two weeks away from the factory—unless Dad has sold it—then of course I'll have as much time as we like."

"Is he thinking of selling it?" Caroline asked.

"Yes, Purcell is after it; wants the Rutledge face mask." He smiled down at her. "You're not more interested in the factory than your honeymoon, are you?" he teased.

Caroline laughed. "The factory's moon is said to be a little better than Rutledge's face mask. He's smiling down at her. 'You're not more interested in the factory than your honeymoon, are you?'"

"And I've a lot of ideas about things for you to do in other places," he rejoined.

Thinking of Caroline's mind to her father. "I suppose I should do my crusading at home," she remarked. "Father needs me, Howard."

"Caroline," he began, and there was an impatient note in his voice. "No," she stopped him, guessing what he was about to say. "I don't mean to ask you to marry my father, too. But . . . oh why try to deny what's true? He will end in the gutter if someone doesn't stop him! I can't let him do that!"

"Yes," Howard said thoughtfully. "He will." And it came to him as a shock that the man he frequently heard spoken of with pity or condescension would soon be related to him. Hardly a father-in-law to be proud of!

"You're right," he added hastily. "We've got to help him. I'll think of something. Of course, we'll need all the money I have for the cottage and . . ."

"And that reminds me," Caroline broke in. "I'm letting Mrs. Stevenson go. It's been a great help to have her, but I don't need her any longer. Mrs. Wade will come in again and relieve me of the heavy work."

"Mrs. Wade and the neighbors," Howard remarked. "And that's just what I think we can't afford, dear. Gossip—your old acquaintances would soon be related to him. Hardly a father-in-law to be proud of!"

Modern Living Pace a Cause of "Peptic Ulcer"

This Common Stomach Ailment Is Often Traced to Hurried and Irregular Eating

By ROYAL S. COPELAND, M. D.
United States senator from New York
Former Commissioner of Health,
New York City

"PEPTIC ULCER," or ulcer of the stomach as it is better known, is a common disorder of modern civilization. In all likelihood it afflicted our forefathers less frequently than it does us.

Though the actual cause of ulcer of the stomach is not known, faulty diet, hasty eating, irregular hours of eating and infection, are factors that play important parts in this disease.

In certain instances the disease occurs in families. This fact has given rise to the belief that the disturbance may be hereditary.

The sufferer from this disorder complains of pain in the region of the stomach. This is periodic, usually occurring two to three hours after eating. Nausea, indigestion, belching and vomiting may be present.

Often Mistaken for Heart Disease
In many cases the pain is severe and radiates to the heart. In such cases the attacks are often mistaken for heart disease. As a rule the pain subsides or entirely disappears when food is taken. This is a characteristic sign of ulcer of the stomach and is often sufficient evidence to arouse suspicion of its presence.

Definite diagnosis of ulcer of the stomach is now possible by means of the X-ray. Prior to the discovery of this remarkable method of examination many sufferers from ulcer of the stomach were treated for dyspepsia, "biliousness," indigestion and other disturbances. The real nature of the disease was overlooked in many cases and only discovered after severe damage to the stomach had occurred.

Can Be Cured
It is now possible to recognize it in its early stage and to cure ulcer of the stomach. When recognized early palliative measures, having to do largely with the diet and restriction of activity, are often sufficient to accomplish complete cure. In the more advanced cases, where the ulcer is of large size, surgery is the only means of permanent relief. Though the operation is a major one, it need not be feared. In the hands of a competent surgeon the operation for ulcer of the stomach is not dangerous, and beneficial results are almost certain to be obtained.

I cannot overstate the danger of neglecting such symptoms as pain after eating or during meals, sour taste, excessive gas formation and indigestion. Bear in mind that such symptoms may be the warning of serious disease of the stomach. They may even be a sign of something more serious but if recognized in its early stages complete cure is possible. Little hope can be offered these sufferers when the affliction has existed for too long a period of time.

Many persons depend on bicarbonate of soda and patent medicines for the relief of stomach pain. This is a dangerous practice. Persistent pain and discomfort warrant a visit to the doctor. If necessary, X-ray pictures should be taken of the intestinal tract. Relief and permanent cure can be obtained only when the underlying cause of the discomfort is known.

Answers to Health Queries
Anxious. Q.—About five years ago my little girl was treated for pin worms which were causing her to take convulsions. Now I find that these worms are back again. Will you please tell me what to do?
A.—It is necessary to be very persistent in the treatment to overcome this condition. For full particulars restate your question and send a stamped self-addressed envelope.

Miss Jane. Q.—I was contemplating electrolysis for removing hair. I have been told that a person undergoing this treatment developed cancer. Will you please advise me?
A.—The electric needle, if handled by an expert, is not harmful.

Enquirer. Q.—What can be done for the condition commonly called "Charley Horse"? This often wakes me out of a sound sleep and often necessitates getting out of bed and standing on the feet, and even then the discomfort is very great. The ball of the foot is so cramped that the toes turn in different directions.
A.—Massage to increase the circulation through the parts should be most helpful. Avoid undue strain and exertion which naturally tend to affect the muscles of the legs and feet. See your doctor if the condition persists.

FARM BUREAUS IN CAMPAIGNS

Reports from the office of the Ohio Farm Bureau in Columbus indicate that membership in this state will show a decided increase for 1935, as county farm bureaus begin their annual membership campaign. Pickaway-co, which was among the first to start its campaign recently, secured 268 new members in the first two days and expects to get over 400 before the campaign ends. Workers in Columbiana-co reported 138 members in the first two days and expect to double the number before the campaign closes.

Other counties to begin their campaigns in December are

Hardin and Harrison, both of which started on December 17. Most of the county campaigns will be held during January. Perry L. Green, president, pointed out, and by the end of that month the organization expects to report several thousand new members.

OTTO TRIAL OPENS

COLUMBUS, Dec. 17.—The trial of Walter E. Otto, city auditor, for embezzlement was started in Judge Henry L. Scarlett's court today. The task of selecting a jury was expected to require the greater part of the first day. Otto is alleged to have drawn false expense vouchers.

BUSINESS RALLIES TO WIELD INFLUENCE IN CONGRESS

RASKOB AND YOUNG HELP

Harriman, C. of C. President, Urges Plan For Recovery—and Reform.

WHITE SULPHUR SPRINGS, W. Va., Dec. 17.—The leadership of American business began a last-minute rally today to make its voice heard in the coming of congress.

With only two weeks remaining before the opening of the session which is expected to enact permanent legislation changing the entire course of industry in America, almost 100 of the most powerful industrialists and commercial leaders of the country including Owen Young and John J. Raskob changed their plans on a week's notice to convene here today.

The call which brought them here was issued unexpectedly by the United States Chamber of Commerce and the National Association of Manufacturers.

AMES IN CHAIR

C. B. Ames, chairman of the board of the Texas company, a lifelong Democrat and friend of the administration, was appointed general chairman of the meeting at the start of today's session. His selection is another indication—added to those already expressed by the manufacturers association and the chamber—of the desire of those promoting the meeting to keep it on a tone friendly to the White House and to keep the door open to themselves for conference on the forthcoming legislation.

Before President Roosevelt writes his message to congress, which will direct the forthcoming legislation of that now overwhelmingly Democratic body, American business and industry wishes to forward to him a plan for recovery—and reform.

On arriving here the business leaders found that Henry I. Harriman, president of the United States Chamber of Commerce, had issued his own 7-point plan timed for the opening of the meeting and copies of which were available here.

Harriman's plan, appearance of

Warns of Marihuana

Harry J. Anslinger

Picturing the alarming growth of the use of marihuana, a narcotic plant which causes insanity in persons drinking an infusion of its leaves or smoking them, Harry J. Anslinger, United States commissioner of narcotics, appeals to Attorney General Homer T. Cummings' national conference on crime for uniform state narcotic laws. He is pictured addressing the conference in Washington.

which at the start of the meeting was criticised as premature by many of the arrivals, contained no encouragement for those who have been asking for recovery not reform.

"Business generally has accepted that conclusion that it has passed out of what might be called its pioneering age, which had its parallel in the mushroom mining camps of the west," it read—"such communities became the stamping ground of the freebooter and the outlaw who followed no counsel but their own and ignored all social obligations."

ASSURANCE TO WORKERS

It also read, "assurance to the worker that he will not be so seriously subjected to the hardships of sickness, accident, unemployment and old-age, may be provided by the setting up of reserves to cushion these blows."

The three most important things on which business, as represented by the chamber, and industry, as represented by the manufacturers' association hope to come an agreement on which they can forward to the White House are: social security legislation (including unemployment insurance), the future of the NRA, and the revival of the durable goods industries.

Committees have been appointed for the drafting of plans on these and other legislative subjects.

WALTERS WINS LAURELS WITH HIS AYRSHIRES

Given Diploma By National Dairy Association; Leads Nation In August.

The cattle herd of Charles Walters, Circleville-twp., has been gaining renown over wide areas in recent months and the following notes taken from "The Ayrshire Digest," monthly publication for the benefit of cattle raisers, show why.

Walters' herd according to the August publication broke the Ayrshire breed's record with a monthly average of 52.04 pounds of butterfat in two milkings daily.

His herd was second in the nation to the National Farm School, Farm School, Pa., and led the herd of the Massachusetts State college, Amherst, Mass., the Richard Whitney farms, Far Hills, N. J., R. W. Spangler, Chatham, N. Y., Vermont Agricultural experiment station, Burlington, Vt., Connecticut state college and eight other nationally known herds.

Walters' herd averaged high for August, the October magazine disclosed with an average of 1.11 pounds of milk and 42.48 pounds of butterfat.

For August Walters' herd led all Ayrshire herds in the nation, Massachusetts state college being second and the National Farm school dropping to fourth.

Mr. Walters has received a diploma listing him on the National Honor Roll of the National Dairy Association in recognition of his achievement of developing a herd of nine cows to a yearly production of 372 pounds of butterfat.

KENNERMAYER ACTION STARTED IN COURT

TULSA, Okla., Dec. 17.—A capacity crowd jammed the courtroom here today for the preliminary hearing of Philip Kennermayer, youthful confessed slayer of John P. Gorrell, Jr., whose murder Thanksgiving night and subsequent developments caused a great sensation in oil wealthy Oklahoma as the killing twelve years ago of Jake Hamon.

The defendant, 19-year-old son of Federal Judge Franklin E. Kennermayer, was expected to stand mute with his battery of legal counsel waiving defense testimony, preferring to save the youth's story for the jury trial, which probably will be set for sometime next month by Common Pleas Judge Bradford Williams.

BURNS CAUGHT

putting what authorities believed was his split in the daring Brooklyn robbery staged by a dozen bandits last August in a raid on an armored truck owned by the United States Trucking corporation. The figures on the magazine divided the staggering loot into twelve equal parts.

The raiders handcuffed Burns, clamped his legs in irons and hurried him to the federal building for questioning. A woman seized with him gave her name as "Mrs. Jean Borian." She was held in a south side police station for the government.

The machine guns seized in Burns' arsenal were identified as weapons taken in a raid by the Dillinger gang on the Warsaw, Ind., police station before Dillinger was slain by federal agents' guns here last July 22.

Burns had made preparations for defense of his hideout. Peep holes had been cut in doors, and the lock on the entrance door had been removed to furnish a gun aperture.

ESCAPED IN 1933

Burns was among the ten members of the Dillinger gang that escaped from the Michigan City, Ind., penitentiary Sept. 26, 1933 as the result of a plot engineered from the outside by Dillinger himself.

Authorities said they were convinced that the ex-convict had participated in many of the spectacular bank robberies and killings that marked the Dillinger gang's trail of terror through the middle west.

Police Capt. Stege, who has been engaged in trailing the surviving Dillingerites, appeared confident that other important arrests were imminent. His activities were cloaked in secrecy early today and his whereabouts unknown, but picked members of his "Dillinger squad" were waiting in the detective bureau for instant action.

21 HORSES BURN

TORONTO, Dec. 17.—Twenty-one race horses were burned to death today in a fire, apparently of incendiary origin, which destroyed three stables of the Thorncliffe racetrack. The animals were valued at $60,000.

Authorities said they believed the fire had been started deliberately because the flames broke out in six different places.

JAPS PROTEST CANAL PLANS

Reported Movement in United States For Second Canal Brings Action.

TOKIO, Dec. 17.—Japan, through a foreign office spokesman today voiced vigorous opposition to the growing movement in the United States for construction of a second inter-ocean canal across the isthmus of Nicaragua.

Such a canal would be a "menace to Japan" that the government would regard as "most untimely" during the London naval conversations, the foreign office mouthpiece asserted.

The official's remarks were provoked by news from Washington that Representative Carl Vinson, chairman of the house committee on Naval affairs, is supporting the drive for immediate construction of the Nicaraguan canal.

This fact, coupled with Vinson's warning that America would build five ships to Japan's three, was accepted here as an attempt to frighten Japan into continuing the Washington treaty, which she is due to denounce this week.

OHIO TO CONTRACT 'CODE' COMPLIERS

The state of Ohio by an act of Legislature recently passed has definitely aligned itself on the side of code compliance and in support of those who are complying with their codes. No longer will the state be in the ridiculous position on the one hand of purchasing materials from a concern and on the other punishing such concern for violating its code in making the sale.

The new law (House Bill 102) provides that it shall be unlawful for any public agency to make a contract with or purchase any supplies from any person unless such person shall have filed with the public agency an affidavit if he is engaged in a business subject to a code, (1) that he is complying with all the provisions of the code, (2) that he has listed for taxation all property used in the production of the supplies and materials for which the contract is to be let, (3) and that he is complying with the workmen's compensation act. In case competitive bids are solicited each bidder must submit such an affidavit with each bid.

All contracts made on behalf of the State or any subdivision must stipulate that all materials or supplies to be used in the performance of the contract will be furnished by persons operating in compliance with their codes. Any contractor before purchasing or procuring supplies for the performance of his contract must procure such an affidavit from the person furnishing materials of supplies to him.

A form of affidavit to be used is set out in the law. It is made a criminal offense for a member of a public agency to violate the act or for any person to make a false affidavit, nor can the contractor obtain his money until the affidavit is furnished.

SAAR CROWD SHOWS ANGER

British Officer Attacked After Automobile Hits Woman; Shots Fired.

SWARBRUECKEN, Dec. 17.—International policing of the potentially troublesome Saar plebiscite period was off to a decidedly unpropitious start today with a British volunteer policeman in hospital after a crowd beat him for hitting a woman with his car and wounding a Saarlander.

Capt. James Justice, the policeman involved, has been suspended, while Geoffrey Knox, Saar governor, has ordered police to investigate the affair "with all severity and trace the aggressor without regard to person."

According to the most reliable accounts, Capt. Justice and the Earl of Aylesford were driving Fraulein Braun home from a cafe party. Reversing his car, the Englishman ran over the curb and struck Frau Steig, who was not seriously injured.

Capt. Justice apologized, and offered to recompense the woman for her injury and damage to her clothing.

A crowd rapidly gathered, threatening the Briton and warning Frau Steig not to accept his money. Capt. Justice drew his revolver to cow the mob, who proceeded to beat him and Lord Aylesford. In the melee, two shots were fired, one of which slightly wounded one Herr Neumeister.

President Confers Quietly With General Johnson On Future of NRA

WASHINGTON—President Roosevelt is quietly consulting General Hugh Johnson on the future of the NRA. He has had one secret conference with the former Blue Eagle ruler on the matter, indicated he expects to talk with him again before a final decision is reached.

At the first closely guarded meeting, Johnson reiterated his old objection to the idea of a board in charge of NRA affairs.

The one-time army officer told the President that multi-command was unsuited for the NRA. He held that effective administrative control could only be obtained by vesting responsibility in one individual.

Johnson urged that in the permanent NRA set-up an executive be installed at the top with an advisory board of assistants under him.

This is exactly the reverse of the present NRA administrative structure.

Furthermore, Johnson's plan was rejected by the President as early as last summer when he accepted the Perkins-Richberg formula of a board to be in charge, plus an administrative officer functioning under it.

Not Guilty

Officials of the Treasury Department were discussing the importance of having as District Attorney for Southern New York an A-1 man who would know to prosecute the many cases which the Treasury has before the courts.

"Sixty per cent of all the criminal cases in New York—dope, boot-legging, smuggling—originate with us," remarked Guy T. Helvering, Commissioner of Internal Revenue.

"Of course," he added quickly, "that doesn't mean the crimes involve Treasury officers."

Old Age

One of the highest-powered lobbying influences that Congress will feel this winter is that of a mild-mannered, well-known retired country doctor, 68 years old.

F. E. Townsend, author of the plan for old age revolving pensions, has moved from Long Beach, Calif., to Washington, bringing along evidence to show that twelve million people are behind him.

That many names have been signed by oldsters all over the country to Townsend petitions. The lean-faced physician declares:

"Our organization is one of the most potent political clubs in the world. A word from headquarters to our various centers is all that's necessary to smother Congress with petitions and telegrams."

Beginning with the West Coast Congressmen, who, he says, are already in the bag, Townsend expects to camp on the steps of the Capitol until his pension legislation is passed.

Called by aged admirers "a second Moses," Dr. Townsend is a man of lowly origin. Born in a log cabin on the Wabash, he practiced medicine among the sheep and cattle ranchers of the Black Hills of South Dakota. Moving to California, he took a job in the Long Beach Health Department, attending indigent patients, whose needs touched his sympathies.

Ousted from his job by political reorganization a year ago, he had plenty of time to ponder the mis-

10-YEAR RECOVERY PLAN DEVISED

MILTON MORRIS, DEAN OF BAR, DIES AT 83

LAWYER SINCE 1875 CALLED; RITES TUESDAY

Arterio Sclerosis Fatal to Venerable Native of Walnut-twp

WIDOW SURVIVES

Obtained Legal Education Under P. C. Smith

Milton Morris, 83, last of that venerable triumvirate which included the late Judges I. N. Abernethy and Clarence Curran, succumbed at his home, 478 N. Court-st., Saturday at 10:23 p. m. He had been failing for several years, arterio sclerosis causing death.

Mr. Morris was a lifetime resident of Pickaway-co. He was born in Walnut-twp Jan. 11, 1851, a son of John Morris and Delia Bowman.

He is survived by his widow, Elizabeth Crist Morris, to whom he was married April 9, 1874; a son, Wellington C. Morris, realtor; a grandson, Milton Everett Morris, and two sisters, Mrs. Noah A. Warner and Miss Sophia Morris, both of this city.

FUNERAL TUESDAY

The funeral will be conducted Tuesday at 2:30 p. m. at the W. H. Albaugh Co. chapel with Rev. E. E. Fowler of the Linden Heights Methodist Episcopal church officiating. His remains will be interred in Forest cemetery.

Active pallbearers will include C. C. Chappell, Max C. Seyfert, Jr., E. L. Tolbert, George E. Roth, Meeker Terwilliger, H. B. Weaver, William Hamilton and Robert G. Colville.

Mr. Morris, who had served as eminent commander of Scioto Commandery Knights Templar, was a member of the first class of Masons to receive the Knights Templar degree in this city.

Born on a farm in Walnut-twp, Milton Morris' early education was gained in the public schools. He did not have the advantage of a university education but at the age of 24 was admitted to practice law before the bar of Ohio after reading in the office of the late Palmer C. Smith.

Two years after passing the bar examination Mr. Morris became a partner of Mr. Smith and this partnership existed until 1900 when the senior member passed away. Mr. Morris had practiced alone since that time.

ACTIVE IN CIVIC LIFE

Mr. Morris served for a number of years as local counsel for the Norfolk & Western Railway Co. and for the old Cincinnati & Muskingum Valley Railroad Co. He was a stockholder and director of the Third National bank for a number of years and was attorney for that organization until his health began to fail. He was also an officer and director of the Scioto Canning Co. at one time and also served as vice president of the Circleville Ice Co.

The deceased came to Circleville in 1871 at which time he became attached to the sheriff's office where he remained two years; he then served as deputy clerk of courts and also a deputy in the auditor's office prior to becoming an attorney.

Mr. Morris, Mr. Abernethy and Mr. Curran were always held in high esteem by their colleagues in the legal business. All were able and stalwart attorneys. Mr. Abernethy and Mr. Curran both succumbed in the last few years.

GRANDSON OF SETTLER

Mr. Morris' grandfather was John Morris, an early settler in Pickaway-co, having come here from New Jersey in 1802.

The body will lie in state at the Albaugh chapel until the hour of service.

ORGANIZATIONS TO VIEW MORRIS BODY

Scioto Commandery Knights Templar will meet at the lodge asylum Tuesday at 2 p. m. to attend the funeral of Milton Morris at the Albaugh chapel.

Members of the Pickaway-co bar association will meet at 8:15 p. m. Monday to view the body of Milton Morris.

Pardon for Nesbitt?

Jacob C. Nesbitt

Reports that Jacob C. Nesbitt, serving a life sentence in Ohio penitentiary for the "bathtub slaying" of his wife at Troy, O., would be given a Christmas pardon by Gov. George White caused protests in Nesbitt's home town. Judge W. D. Jones, who sentenced him in 1926, and L. E. Harvey, prosecutor of the case, declared they would not recommend Nesbitt's release. Nesbitt, trusty and model prisoner, has been acting as chauffeur for John McSweeney, state welfare director.

TWO ARMY MEN DIE IN PLANE

Son of Commander of United States Fleet; Motorists Endangered.

BURLINGAME, Cal., Dec. 17.—Crushed in their flaming plane when it crashed on the crowded bayshore highway near here, two army airmen, one the son of Admiral Joseph J. Reeves, commander-in-chief of the United States fleet, were dead today.

They were Lieut. William Cunningham Reeves, 25, and Sergeant L. A. Peterson, 27, flight mechanic, of Herring, Okla.

Swooping suddenly out of low clouds, their plane brushed the top of an automobile, struck a high tension pole, and exploded in flames.

The searing heat precluded any effort to rescue the men. Their crash imperiled hundreds of motorists returning from the Bay Meadows races. Two automobiles were showered with wreckage.

It was believed Reeves, piloting the plane, had chosen to strike the power wires rather than crash into one of the bungalows lining the highway.

Low clouds and rain which blinded the airmen were blamed for the accident by army air officials.

Reeves' plane, in company with one piloted by Lieut. George McIntyre, had taken off from Los Angeles yesterday noon, enroute to Crissy field, San Francisco, where Reeves was stationed.

OHIOAN IS KILLED

GALLIPOLIS, Dec. 17.—Searching for a motive, police here today investigated a fight in the home of Thomas H. Steele, a farmer near Coalton, which resulted in Steele's death Sunday and left Charles Plummer, 56, in a hospital seriously wounded.

Steele, 78, died from a blow on the head with a heavy coal mine drill, Sheriff Preston Turner of Jackson said.

One version of the fight, as given to deputy sheriffs, declared that a quarrel started while the two men were drinking, and that Steele fired twice into Plummer's body as the younger man hit him over the head with the drill. Liquor was found in Steele's home and barn, Sheriff Turner said.

24-HOUR TELEGRAPH SERVICE PROVIDED

C. W. Clark of the Western Union announced today that it has opened a branch in the Norfolk & Western tower which will be open at all hours to handle telegraph business.

However, the only hours in which wires may be sent through the N. & W. office are those after the regular office has closed at 7 p. m. each day and on Sunday. In this manner 24 hour service is provided.

SOME STORES TO OPEN, SOME CLOSE

Some of Circleville's business houses will be open tonight and every evening this week until Christmas while others will not remain open in the evenings until Wednesday.

The closing hour of 9 o'clock has been established. It is impossible to list those who will be opened and those closed.

SOVIET 'COUP' IS BROKEN UP

Plot to Place Government Under Soviet Regime Ended by Police

BUENOS AIRES, Dec. 17.—A nation-wide revolutionary plot to place all Argentina under a Soviet regime was broken up overnight with the arrest of three hundred Communists in and around the capital, police announced today.

The conspiracy, according to police, had ramifications throughout the country, and more arrests in several provinces are expected.

WORKED THROUGH SCHOOLS

Detectives unearthed the plot, it was learned, when they traced to its source the flood of Communist literature which has been sent for several months to all school teachers.

Police were extremely reluctant to reveal any details about the program for overthrowing the government, although a formal communiqué was promised later.

It was understood, however, that subversive influences had been hard at work in the army, in the hope that a sufficient number of armed troops could be won over for the coup.

This movement, it was said, was not connected with recent abortive rebellions in Santa Fe and other provinces.

SOFIA, Dec. 17.—Five hundred persons, including 175 soldiers were under arrest today following the unmasking of a huge plot by Communists to seize control of the Bulgarian army.

Units stationed at Chaskovo, where the arrests were made, planned to seize all the arms and the officers, officials said that seized documents revealed.

Police first learned of the alleged plot upon the arrest of George Stoff, Communist leader, who recently led a band of Reds into the town of Ostretz, looting the public treasury and robbing richer peasants.

FEDERAL MEN CATCH BURNS; TRAIL OTHERS

Man Who Fled Prison With Dillinger Wanted In Armored Car Theft

GIVES INFORMATION

Believe Hamilton and Fox Near Arrest

CHICAGO, Dec. 17.—Captured in a swift, bloodless raid on his South side hideout, Joseph Burns, 33, one of the last surviving members of the original John Dillinger gang, was being grilled today by federal inspectors as a suspect in the $427,000 Brooklyn armored car robbery Aug. 21.

While the questioning was being carried on in secret, raiding police squads were held in readiness to effect the capture of John Hamilton and Joseph Fox, the only two Dillinger gang veterans still at large. Their arrests were imminent, it was hinted by Supervising Police Captain John Stege.

After hours of ceaseless questioning Burns was believed to have divulged important information concerning the hideout of Hamilton, Fox and Alvin Karpis, the latter a suspect in the $200,000 ransom kidnapping of Edward Bremer, St. Paul banker.

ARSENAL CONFISCATED

Thirty policemen and federal agents led by Capt. Stege, captured Burns in his West 69th street hideout without a struggle. Within reach of the gangster were two machine guns, two automatic pistols and three rifles, but Burns chose to surrender peacefully.

Searching the flat, officers found an old magazine on which was scrawled some figures com-

Peasant Murders Wife, Feeds Her to Neighbors

BUCHAREST, Dec. 17.—Out of the grim backwoods of northern Rumania, where the peasants still live in medieval ignorance, today came the macabre story of a practical joke that will cost the perpetrator his life.

Nicholas Stefan, a farmer of the village of Onitani, invited all his wife's relatives and friends to a feast.

But the guests observed that Mme. Stefan was absent; they noticed the curious taste and appearance of the meat,

ELMER SEIMER TAKEN AT 56

Illness of 10 Years Fatal; Funeral To Be Tuesday Afternoon At Home.

Ill for ten years, Elmer L. Seimer, 56, died Sunday at 2 p. m. at his home 124 W. Corwin-st. of a cerebral hemorrhage. He was a native of Fairfield-co.

Mr. Seimer was born June 15, 1878 a son of Andrew J. and Anna Eversole Seimer. He was married March 2, 1904 to Miss Jessie Ward who survives him.

Two adopted children, Edward Brown of Toledo and Mrs. Lulu Brown of Columbus, three brothers, George of Rossview, Ill., Harley of Lancaster, and John of Circleville, and two sisters, Mrs. Margaret Leist of Circleville and Mrs. Ed Leist of Amanda survive in addition to three half brothers, Omer of Jackson-twp., and Chester and Andrew of Stoutsville.

The funeral will be Tuesday at 2:30 p. m. at the home with Dr. G. J. Troutman officiating. Burial will be in Forest cemetery by Mr. S. Rinehart.

Mr. Seimer was a member of the Lutheran church.

JAMES VALENTINE, 84, DIES IN TROY

James Valentine, 84, a native of Washington-twp., died Saturday at the home of his daughter Mrs. Howard Arthur, Troy.

He leaves a sister, Mrs. Susan Warner of Stoutsville who is the last of a family of 11 children of Amos and Rachel Valentine.

Mr. Valentine leaves six children.

WATER SUPPLY AT AMANDA IS SHORT

Residents of Amanda have been warned by Acting Mayor Francis Reichelderfer to be careful of fire hazards during the Christmas season since the village's water supply is impaired. "A major blaze would be disastrous," Reichelderfer declared.

E. K. JENKINS JOINS HERALD

Veteran Ohio Newspaper Man Takes Job in Editorial Department.

The Herald is pleased to announce the addition of its editorial staff of E. K. Jenkins, who assumes his duties today.

Mr. Jenkins brings to The Herald a record of many years' energetic and successful service in the newspaper field. For nine years he was editor of a Greenfield (Ohio) newspaper, one of the outstanding weekly newspapers of the state and was later associated with the Press-Gazette at Hillsboro. Prior to returning to Ohio 11 years ago, he was engaged in newspaper business in North Dakota. He is well known in newspaper circles throughout southwestern Ohio.

No other changes in the personnel of the editorial staff are contemplated.

FUNDS INCREASED IN ALL TOWNSHIPS

The thirtieth distribution of receipts of gasoline tax funds has been made here each township receiving $300 and the county fund getting $9,500.

T. D. Krinn, deputy auditor, believes this gas tax distribution will be the last of the year.

TWO CARS CRASH ON SCIOTO TRAIL

Two automobiles were badly damaged at 1 a. m. Sunday when the automobiles of J. M. Lloyd of Bidwell, O., and S. M. Halbert of Marysville, R. F. D. collided nine miles south of Circleville.

Lights of an approaching car blinded Lloyd whose machine ran against the rear of the Halbert machine.

Deputy Miller Fissell investigated.

Both cars were damaged but no personal injury resulted Saturday night when the automobiles of Harold Davis, S. Court-st., and Miss Nellie Hampp, E. Ohio-st., collided at Court and Main-sts.

Davis was crossing the intersection west on Main-st. and Miss Hampp was driving south on Court-st.

CABINET LISTS PUBLIC WORKS, GIVEN TO FDR

Far - Reaching Program Drafted; Nation's Assets Are Listed

TO USE 10 BILLIONS

Develop All Resources, Planners Say

WASHINGTON, Dec. 17.—The most far-reaching, long-range economic planning "anti-depression" programs ever drafted, and containing a complete inventory of the nation's assets, was presented to President Roosevelt today.

It was written by the national resources board, composed of cabinet heads. Its recommendations call for the expenditure of upwards from 26 billion dollars by federal, state and local governments on public works during the next 10 years, and its suggestions call for development of almost every conceivable field, affecting every section of the land and benefiting virtually every man, woman and child.

PROVIDE EMPLOYMENT

Headed by Secretary of the Interior Ickor, the board's objective in presenting its long-range planning scheme to include all the national resources, waterways, electric power, agriculture, and minerals is to provide employment and to lessen the effect of future depressions.

Its chief proposal is to have congress legislate the public works administration into a permanent agency backed by a federal fund of ten billions of dollars to finance a gigantic public works program during the next six years.

"Extension of public works into new fields, and expansion of all public works, old and new, into the field of reasonable possibility from point of view of needful public service," the report adds, "brings the estimate of magnitude."

ROBINSON AGAIN EVADES CAPTURE

DAVENPORT, Ia., Dec. 17.—The shadowy trail of Thomas H. Robinson, Jr., accused kidnaper of Mrs. Alice Speed Stoll of Louisville, Ky., dipped into the tri-cities area today.

He was identified as having rented an automobile in Moline, Ill., across the Mississippi river, while disguised as a woman. He was given the car when he displayed a large roll of currency.

Police and federal agents throughout the country have been hunting Robinson since $50,000 ransom was paid for the return of the Louisville society leader.

MORE EXPULSIONS IRE HUNGARIANS

BUDAPEST, Dec. 17.—Anger against Yugoslavia flamed anew today with the report in Hungarian newspapers that 84 more Hungarians expelled from Yugoslavia, had arrived across the frontier, and that more were expected.

The newspapers charged Yugoslavia had broken her promise to halt the expulsions.

About This And That

BY THE
SECOND GUESSER

"OFFICIAL ALL-STAR"

What might be termed an "official" all-American football team was announced Sunday by the Cleveland Plain Dealer writer, John Dietrich—His team was picked by totalling votes received by players from all who chose such mythical teams—For instance if Collier's picked Bud Lund for first team that gave Lund one vote in the consensus—Fourteen all-American teams are taken as the basis for the selections.

The team and their votes (first team votes only counting):
Ends: Larson, Minnesota, 9, and Hutson, Alabama, 7.
Tackles: Monahan, Ohio State, 7; Lee, Alabama, 5.
Guards: Hartwig, Pitt, 10; Bevan, Minnesota, 6.
Center: Robinson, Notre Dame, 6.
Quarterback: Grayson, Stanford, 13.
Halfbacks: Lund, Minnesota, 12; Borries, Navy, 9.
Fullback: Howell, Alabama, 6.

PICKENS' SELECTIONS

Bob Pickens, who has seen football games far and near, especially those in which Notre Dame played comes through today with some selections that take their place with the best—His all-American includes: Moscrip of Stanford and Larson of Minnesota; ends; Lee of Alabama and Barclay of North Carolina; tackles: Hartwig of Pitt and Bevan of Minnesota; guards: Robinson of Notre Dame; center: back, Howell of Alabama, Lund of Minnesota, Grayson of Stanford and Berwanger of Chicago.

He also names a team from players he has actually seen in action this year including: Vairo of Notre Dame and Ward of Michigan; ends: Brooke of Colgate and Hamrick of Ohio State; tackles: Hartwig of Pitt and Monahan of Ohio State; guards: Robinson of Notre Dame; center: Purvis of Purdue, Nickisch of Pitt, Weinstein of Pitt and Shakespear of Notre Dame, halfbacks.

His rating of leading teams includes:

1. Minnesota.
2. Pittsburgh.
3. Alabama.
4. Stanford.
5. Ohio State.
6. Colgate.
7. Notre Dame.
8. Navy.
9. Louisiana State.

Bama Has Fine Record

Under Coach Frank Thomas, the University of Alabama football team has lost only four games of 37 played in the last four seasons. One was a tie, with Mississippi.

Jones Gets Around

Howard Jones, coach at the University of Southern California, has coached at Syracuse, Yale, Ohio State, Iowa and Duke.

Exchanging Coaching Posts?

Ozzie Solem

Richard Hanley

Resignation of Richard E. (Dick) Hanley, right, as head football coach at Northwestern university after a reign of seven years was expected to open the way for negotiations with Ozzie Solem, left, coach at the University of Iowa, to take over the post.

WILLAMAN ENDS BUCKEYE REPORT

CLEVELAND, Dec. 17.—Sam Willaman, athletic director and head football coach at Western Reserve university here, today definitely spiked all rumors and reports that the school would join the Buckeye Athletic association.

Asked about a report from Columbus that Western Reserve would join the fast-expanding Buckeye association, Willaman said:

"We have not been invited to join the Buckeye A. A., but if we receive such an invitation we shall decline. We are not interested."

FIREMEN BATTLE 3-ALARM BLAZE

COLUMBUS, Dec. 17.—Eighty firemen battled a W. Gay-st. 3-alarm fire here Sunday afternoon for two hours. Estimates on the damage ran from $5,000 to $30,000. The fire was a spectacular one with a crowd of 5,000 seeking points of vantage.

A number of firemen inhaled fumes and were overcome. Several business houses sustained loss.

Factographs

A hive or colony of bees has its maximum population during the time of storing surplus honey. Then the average colony, roughly estimated, contains between 50,000 and 75,000 workers.

Ishtar was the name of the chief goddess worshipped by the Semitic Babylonians, the Assyrians, and apparently also by the Gutians and the Lulubians.

Every part of Georgia, except the line-sink region and some of the flat country near the coast, is well supplied with streams.

The eja is the desert saw viper.

VARSITY LOSES AS RESERVE 5 WINS ANOTHER

Groveport Shows Quite An Offense In Second Half; Tigers Crippled.

Handicapped by the absence of forward Kirwin and guard Speakman the Tigers were beaten 29-20 by Groveport in an out-of-town game Saturday evening. Replacements for this pair were not quite up to snuff and as a result a Groveport forward, Weaver, broke loose in the second half to drop five action shots through the bucket to win.

The Red and Black, after a hard game Friday night, led 10-7 at the end of the half but Groveport did most of the playing in the second half.

Henry led the Tiger scorers with two action shots and four free throws.

Next Friday evening the Tigers go to Chillicothe to meet a good team. The reserves go along.

GIANT-DODGER FEUD RENEWED

NEW YORK, Dec. 17.—The feud between the New York Giants and Brooklyn Dodgers was revived today following Bill Terry's warning to the Dodgers to watch their step next season in the matter of Dick Bartell "or somebody will get hurt."

When with the Phillies last season, Shortstop Bartell aroused the ire of the Dodgers by spiking Linus Frey, Brooklyn rookie. Before leaving Saturday night for his home in Memphis, Manager Terry hinted that if the Dodgers try to "dusting off" on their own hook.

Cossey Stengel, pilot of the Dodgers, came right back today with the rejoinder that his club has a couple of bean ball artists, too. He doubted, however, that the Bartell-Frey feud will be resumed.

Pitchers, Attention!
Frank Demaree, who has been recalled by the Cubs, hit 45 home runs in the Pacific Coast league last season.

A BRIGHTER CHRISTMAS

FROM every front the Christmas news is cheerful. The swiftest flow of Christmas spending in years is swirling in on the nation's merchants. A survey shows that Christmas trade in many cities is at the high pitch of the 1929 and 1930 seasons and that in some localities it is 33 1-3 per cent above last year. Even sharper gains are expected in the next few days.

All of this, of course, comes under the general classification of glad tidings. In fact, it gives a peculiar appropriateness to the news from New England that the demand for trees is unprecedented. In Vermont alone, more than 1,200,000 trees were shipped south.

These are signs that many millions of Americans, young and old, will have a happier Christmas than they have enjoyed in several years. There are countless others, however, for whom the more fortunate members of society must make adequate provision if the Christmas spirit is to prevail in the land.

NOBEL PEACE AWARDS

FOR the first time in three years the Nobel peace prize is awarded. It is divided between Arthur Henderson, president of the World Disarmament Conference, and Sir Norman Angell, writer and lecturer. Neither of these gentlemen can point to a concrete accomplishment for peace, but both have been indefatigable workers in the cause. There has been no more consistent and tireless evangelist of peace than Norman Angell, while Mr. Henderson's struggle to bring results in the long-drawn-out disarmament conference entitles him to recognition.

It is difficult to say what is of permanent value to the solution of the peace problem. Activities which seem promising at the time, such as those of Briand and Stresemann, former prize winners, lose some of their luster in the ebb and flow of events. That may be temporary. Some one may pick up the thread where they left off, as there are now some signs of French and German statesmen building on the Locarno foundation. It is to be hoped that this will happen.

But even if this hope is to be deferred, those who labor untiringly, planting ideas of peace and nurturing them, are contributing to the solution that must be found some day. They have earned respect for their labors.

If he yearns for his wife to take some interest in his career, what he really wants is somebody to say: "Atta boy!"

Back in Bible times, it was customary to place all the blame on a goat instead of tonsils.

You don't plan failure. Just learn to feel sorry for yourself and let nature take its course.

A kindly providence seems to order things so that the winnings of the Irish Sweepstakes go to those who need them.

General Johnson's vocabulary is sadly missed in a land whose speech is unrelieved by a sufficient number of purple patches.

Revival of discussion of the maintenance of standards of living is encouraging. Until now most of us have been content to merely live.

It might be worse. We'll differ on the outside, yet surgeons don't whittle us down to fit their idea of normal.

We are given to sectionalism and nothing is common to all regions except mortgages and a sock on the jaw.

CAROLINE by RUTH DEWEY GROVES

CHAPTER XXXV

"Will you go for a drive with me, sweetheart? I'm on a vacation, and it's a nice day. Be good for you to get out. We'll lunch in the country. And then I'll tell you my good news."

"Oh no, tell me now." "Get your hat and coat. I'll tell you in the car."

Caroline delayed to give some instructions to Mrs. Stevenson but in a few minutes she was ready. Howard was glad to leave the house. In spite of all that Caroline and her mother had done to brighten it up he found it depressing. He would give a great deal, he thought, if Caroline were never coming back to it. With the thought came a glow of righteousness, which he did not analyze; and therefore did not discover that it was his own love of comfort that inspired his generosity.

"We're going to look at a little old stone cottage at Lake Cloud," he said to her as they drove away. "And you'll like it, Caro, we'll buy it in the spring. It's for sale very cheap. Everything is coming our way at last, sweetheart. Gwen's off for Reno and she isn't going to cause us any trouble. I've had a talk with Dad."

"Oh, Howard," Caroline broke in, "you mean he isn't going to oppose our marriage?"

The pause that preceded Howard's answer to Caroline's question was more enlightening than his words. "He isn't as down on me about Gwen's leaving as I thought he'd be," he said. "But of course," he added hastily, "he doesn't know all about it."

Caroline drew in a sharp breath. "All about what?" she asked. "Gwen and me?"

"About you, dear. I couldn't tell him. He believed, as it was, that I was to blame for all the trouble with Gwen—if he'd known about you I could never have convinced him that I wasn't."

"Well," Caroline asked, "aren't you, Howard? Aren't both of us to blame?"

"You know better than that," Howard answered shortly. "It's true, I haven't felt guilty about it," Caroline admitted, "but Gwen wouldn't have left you if it hadn't been for me, would she?"

"I think she would," Howard said. "She told me she's in love with someone else, Caro."

"Oh!—well, I'm glad. I'll stop worrying about her now. I was a little, you know, thinking that perhaps we hadn't got so much right to our love as we believed. I've hated her, Howard, but I felt, after last night, that I might have been wrong."

"You were wasting your sympathy," Howard told her. "Gwen didn't go to marry again. She wants to go to marry again."

"That makes things better for you with your father, doesn't it?" "It saved the day for me. After Gwen got so hot about it, you know, she hadn't had good reason not to. She's trying to keep her dad sweet, too."

Caroline looked at him, with a twist of doubt on her lips. "Too?" she repeated. "Do you mean, Howard, that now you are to be free, you must consider your father above all else?"

"Not above all else, darling," Howard corrected, "but with all else. Surely you understand that. I'm just where I was before, as far as he's concerned, except that he hasn't made the break and Dad hasn't kicked me out. I thought you'd be pleased that things have gone so well," he added reproachfully.

"I am, dear," Caroline said, feeling ashamed of her nagging. "I was thinking of what Mrs. Stevenson would say when she learned you were right—if we're to be sensible about it. But . . . well, never mind, tell me one thing. You don't think we've driven Gwen into anything she'll regret, do you?"

"What makes you so suddenly tender toward her?" Howard returned. "I assure you she doesn't feel the same toward you."

"I don't know," Caroline replied. "Unless it's just that narrow softness our hearts. I know, really, that I haven't anything to thank her for, and yet I shouldn't want to be responsible for any trouble that comes to her."

"You won't be," Gwen can take care of herself. But I wish you'd be as considerate of me. You can save me a great deal of trouble and unhappiness just by standing with me against Dad."

Caroline sighed. "I'll try," she said, but there was no warmth in her voice. Deep in her heart she was sad and disappointed that Howard was not willing to defy his father for her sake.

"Tell me about the cottage at the lake," she said, forcing herself to sound enthusiastic.

"I think you'll like it," Howard responded. "It's old and tumble-down in places, but we can have a lot of fun remodeling it."

"How did you find it? Lake Cloud is so inaccessible."

"On a hunting trip," he laughed. "I do go hunting once in a while."

"I don't want to be awfully out of the way for us—for you?"

"Yes, it will," he acknowledged. "But Caro, honey, it won't be long before we can be married. Not long at all. I'm afraid, to make sure, I've been thinking of the place. Dad sees things our way. Just in case he doesn't, I thought . . . well, why should we wait? We can be married anyway—and it's lovely in the summer at Lake Cloud. In the winter, if you got lonely, we could come back to town and take a small apartment for a few months. And in the meantime everything is bound to come right."

"A secret marriage," Caroline said slowly. "It's a great risk," she added with a hint of sarcasm.

Howard did not catch it. "I know," he replied, "but I've got to take it. I won't wait any longer than I have to for you, sweetheart."

Caroline closed her eyes and remained silent, trying to hide from him the coolness she felt toward his proposal. It frightened her to feel as she did. What if her mother had been right about the piecemeal revelation her traits in it that she could not tolerate?

"Don't be a fool . . . don't go looking for pots of gold," she told herself. "What's wrong with a secret marriage? What's wrong with a secret marriage? What's wrong with a secret marriage?"

Howard's eyes were fixed on her. "Why shouldn't he have both her and his father's money? Wasn't she thinking too much of her own ideals? Wouldn't any girl who loved him want to help him?"

Suddenly she put a hand on his arm. "I'm a fraud," she said candidly. "Always thinking of myself, and pretending it's high-mindedness. Forgive me, darling, and drive faster. It's a long way to Lake Cloud."

"I knew you'd come through for me," Howard exclaimed happily. "You're the person I can count on, Caro. But what do I have to forgive?"

Caroline was surprised that he shouldn't know, but she said only: "For not appreciating your cleverness in finding a way to outwit your father. It is a rather in your cap."

"Romantic, too," Howard supplied for the first time in her life Caroline felt that she had been stupid. But the old, stubborn loyalty of her first love for him came to prick at her conscience. She felt ashamed. Where—if she were to go on baiting him, criticizing him—would it end?

Tears of repentance sprang into her eyes. His kindness deserved know you're right—if we're to be sensible about it. But . . . well, she had got into such a state of mind about him? She loved him, wanted nothing more than to be his wife, and yet every move he made to bring about the consummation of their happiness seemed to meet with her disapproval. It wasn't fair to him! She had said she drove him away from her in the first place. Why couldn't she remember that? And that she'd cried her heart out to have him back on any terms? Why couldn't she see that Howard's fortune was her fortune? Why couldn't she want security and ease more than a silly exhibition of independence? Certainly Howard would never be content in poverty—why expect him to be miserable just so that she might feel she had inspired a story book love?

She leaned against him, yielding. Howard put an arm around her long enough to draw her closer. He became expansive with satisfaction. "We'll have a honeymoon trip, he said happily. "I'll get at least two weeks away from the factory—unless Dad has sold it—then of course I'll have as much time as we like."

"Is he thinking of selling it?" Caroline asked.

"Pursell is after it; wants the Rutledge face mask." He smiled down at her. "You're not more interested in the factory than your honeymoon, are you?" he teased.

Caroline laughed. "The factory's there," she said. "The honeymoon, too. But . . . oh why try to deny what's true? He'll end up gutting it if he doesn't stop him! I can't let him do that!"

"Yes," Howard said thoughtfully. "The Rutledge face mask." He smiled down at her. "You're not more interested in the factory than your honeymoon, are you?" he teased.

Caroline laughed. "The factory's there," she said. "The honeymoon, too. But . . . oh why try to deny what's true? He'll end up gutting it if he doesn't stop him! I can't let him do that!"

"And I've a lot of ideas about things for you to do in other places," he rejoined.

Thinking of the Rutledge factory had turned Caroline's mind to her father. "I suppose I should do my crusading at home," she remarked.

"Caroline," he began, and there was an impatient note in his voice. "No," she stopped him, guessing what he was about to say. "I don't mean to ask you to marry my father, too. But . . . oh why try to deny what's true? He'll end up gutting it if he doesn't stop him! I can't let him do that!"

Modern Living Pace a Cause of "Peptic Ulcer"

This Common Stomach Ailment Is, Often Traced to Hurried and Irregular Eating

By ROYAL S. COPELAND, M. D., United States senator from New York, Former Commissioner of Health, New York City

"PEPTIC ULCER," or ulcer of the stomach as it is better known, is a common disorder of modern civilization. In all likelihood it afflicted our forefathers less frequently than it does us.

Though the actual cause of ulcer of the stomach is not known, faulty diet, hasty eating, irregular hours of eating and infection, are factors that play important parts in this disease. In certain instances the disease occurs in families. This fact has given rise to the belief that the disturbance may be hereditary.

The sufferer from this disorder complains of pain in the region of the stomach. This is periodic, usually occurring two to three hours after eating. Nausea, indigestion, belching and vomiting may be present.

Often Mistaken for Heart Disease In many cases the pain is severe and radiates to the heart. In such cases the attacks are often mistaken for heart disease. As a rule the pain subsides or entirely disappears when food is taken. This is a characteristic sign of ulcer of the stomach and is often sufficient evidence to arouse suspicion of its presence.

Definite diagnosis of ulcer of the stomach is now possible by means of the X-ray. Prior to the discovery of this remarkable method of examination many sufferers from ulcer of the stomach were treated for dyspepsia, "biliousness," indigestion and other disturbances. The real nature of the disease was overlooked in many cases and only discovered after severe damage to the stomach had occurred.

Can Be Cured It is now possible to recognize it in its early stage and to cure ulcer of the stomach. When recognized early palliative measures, having to do largely with the diet and sufficient rest, are often sufficient to accomplish complete cure. In the more advanced cases, where the ulcer is of large size, surgery is the only means of permanent relief. Though the operation is a major one, it need not be feared. In the hands of a competent surgeon the operation for ulcer of the stomach is not dangerous, and beneficial results are almost certain to be obtained.

I cannot overstate the danger of neglecting such symptoms as pain after eating or during meals, sour taste, excessive gas formation and indigestion. Bear in mind that such symptoms may be the warning of serious disease of the stomach. They may even be a sign of something more serious but if recognized in its early stages complete cure is possible. Little hope can be offered these sufferers when the affliction has existed for too long a period of time.

Many persons depend on bicarbonate of soda and potent medicines for the relief of stomach pain. This is a dangerous practice. Persistent pain and discomfort warrant a visit to the doctor. If necessary, X-ray pictures should be taken of the intestinal tract. Relief and

FARM BUREAUS IN CAMPAIGNS

Reports from the office of the Ohio Farm Bureau in Columbus indicate that membership in this state will show a decided increase for 1935, as county farm bureaus begin their annual membership campaign. Pickaway-co., which was among the first to start its campaign recently, secured 268 new members in the first two days and expects to get over 400 before the campaign ends. Workers in Columbiana-co reported 138 members in the first two days and expect to double the number before the campaign closes. Other counties to begin their campaigns in December are

Hardin and Harrison, both of which started on December 17. Most of the county campaigns will be held during January. Perry L. Green, president, pointed out, and by the end of that month the organization expects to report several thousand new members.

OTTO TRIAL OPENS

COLUMBUS, Dec. 17.—The trial of Walter E. Otto, city auditor, for embezzlement was started in Judge Henry L. Scarlett's court today. The task of selecting a jury was expected to require the greater part of the first day. Otto is alleged to have drawn false expense vouchers.

BUSINESS RALLIES TO WIELD INFLUENCE IN CONGRESS

RASKOB AND YOUNG HELP

Harriman, C. of C. President, Urges Plan For Recovery—and Reform.

WHITE SULPHUR SPRINGS, W. Va., Dec. 17.—The leadership of American business began a last-minute rally today to make its voice heard in the coming of congress.

With only two weeks remaining before the opening of the session which is expected to enact permanent legislation changing the entire course of industry in America, almost 100 of the most powerful industrialists and commercial leaders of the country including Owen Young and John J. Raskob changed their plans on a week's notice to convene here today.

The call which brought them here was issued unexpectedly by the United States Chamber of Commerce and the National Association of Manufacturers.

AMES IN CHAIR

C. B. Ames, chairman of the board of the Texas company, a lifelong Democrat and friend of the administration, was appointed general chairman of the meeting at the start of today's session. His selection is another indication added to those already expressed by the manufacturers association and the chamber—of the desire of those promoting the meeting to keep it on a tone friendly to the White House and to keep the door open to themselves for conference on the forthcoming legislation.

Before President Roosevelt writes his message to congress, which will direct the forthcoming legislation of that now overwhelming Democratic body, American business and industry wishes to forward to him a plan for recovery—and reform.

On arriving here the business leaders found that Henry I. Harriman, president of the United States Chamber of Commerce, had issued his own 7-point plan timed for the opening of the meeting and copies of which were available here.

Warns of Marihuana

Harry J. Anslinger

Picturing the alarming growth of the use of marihuana, a narcotic plant which causes insanity in persons drinking an infusion of its leaves or smoking them, Harry J. Anslinger, United States commissioner of narcotics, appeals to Attorney General Homer T. Cummings' national conference on crime for uniform state narcotic laws. He is pictured addressing the conference in Washington.

which at the start of the meeting was criticised as premature by many of the arrivals, contained no encouragement for those who have been asking for recovery not reform.

"Business generally has accepted that conclusion that it has passed out of what might be called its pioneering age, which had its parallel in the mushroom mining camps of the west," it read. "Such communities became the stamping ground of the freebooter and the outlaw who followed no counsel but their own and ignored all social obligations."

ASSURANCE TO WORKERS

It also read, "assurance to the worker that he will not be so seriously subjected to the hardships of sickness, accident, unemployment and old-age, may be provided by the setting up of reserves to cushion these blows."

The three most important things on which business, as represented by the chamber, and industry, as represented by the manufacturers' association hope to come an agreement on which they can forward to the White House are social security legislation (including employment insurance), the future of the NRA, and the revival of the durable goods industries.

Committees have been appointed for the drafting of plans on these and other legislative subjects.

WALTERS WINS LAURELS WITH HIS AYRSHIRES

Given Diploma By National Dairy Association; Leads Nation In August.

The cattle herd of Charles Walters, Circleville-twp., has been gaining renown over wide areas in recent months and the following notes taken from "The Ayrshire Digest," monthly publication for the benefit of cattle raisers, show why.

Walters' herd according to the August publication broke the Ayrshire breed's record with a monthly average of 52.04 pounds of butterfat in two milkings daily. His herd was second in the nation to the National Farm School, Farm School, Pa., and led the herd of the Massachusetts State college, Amherst, Mass., the Richard Whitney farms, Far Hills, N. J., R. W. Spangler, Chatham, N. Y., Vermont Agricultural experiment station, Burlington, Vt., Connecticut state college and eight other nationally known herds.

Walters' herd averaged high for August, the October magazine disclosed with an average of 1,111 pounds of milk and 42.48 pounds of butterfat.

For August Walters' herd led all Ayrshire herds in the nation, Massachusetts state college being second and the National Farm school dropping to fourth.

Mr. Walters has received a diploma listing him on the National Honor Roll of the National Dairy association in recognition of his achievement of developing a herd of nine cows to a yearly production of 372 pounds of butterfat.

KENNERMAN ACTION STARTED IN COURT

TULSA, Okla., Dec. 17.—A capacity crowd jammed the courthouse here today for the preliminary hearing of Philip Kennerman, youthful confessed slayer of John F. Gorrell, Jr., whose murder Thanksgiving night and subsequent developments caused a great sensation in oil wealthy Oklahoma as the killing twelve years ago of Jake Hamon.

The defendant, 19-year-old son of Federal Judge Franklin E. Kennerman, was expected to stand mute with his battery of legal counsel waiving defense testimony, preferring to save the youth's story for the jury trial, which probably will be set for sometime next month by Common Pleas Judge Bradford Williams.

putting what authorities believed was his split in the daring Brooklyn robbery staged by a dozen bandits last August in a raid on an armored truck owned by the United States Trucking corporation. The figures on the magazine divided the staggering loot into twelve equal parts.

The raiders handcuffed Burns, clamped his legs in irons and hurried him to the federal building for questioning. A woman seized with him gave her name as "Mrs. Jean Borian." She was held in a south side police station for the government.

The machine guns seized in Burns' arsenal were identified as weapons taken in a raid by the Dillinger gang on the Warsaw, Ind., police station before Dillinger was slain by federal agents' guns here last July 22.

Burns had made preparations for defense of his hideout. Peep holes had been cut in doors, and the lock on the entrance door had been removed to furnish a gun aperture.

ESCAPED IN 1933

Burns was among the ten members of the Dillinger gang that escaped from the Michigan City, Ind., penitentiary Sept. 26, 1933 as the result of a plot engineered from the outside by Dillinger himself.

Authorities said they were convinced that the ex-convict had participated in many of the spectacular bank robberies and killings that marked the Dillinger gang's trail of terror through the middle west.

Police Capt. Stepe, who has been engaged in trailing the surviving Dillingerites, appeared confident that other important arrests were imminent. His activities were cloaked in secrecy early today and his whereabouts unknown, but picked members of his "Dillinger squad" were waiting in the detective bureau for instant action.

Another feature of the report is its suggestions for a permanent agency "to plan for the nation on a scientific basis and with understanding of all elements involved in the program."

21 HORSES BURN

TORONTO, Dec. 17.—Twenty-one race horses were burned to death today in a fire, apparently of incendiary origin, which destroyed three stables of the Thorncliffe race track. The animals were valued at $60,000. Authorities said they believed the fire had been started deliberately because the flames broke out in six different places.

JAPS PROTEST CANAL PLANS

Reported Movement in United States For Second Canal Brings Action.

TOKIO, Dec. 17.—Japan, through a foreign office spokesman today voiced vigorous opposition to the growing movement in the United States for construction of a second inter-ocean canal across the Isthmus of Nicaragua.

Such a canal would be a "menace to Japan" that the government would regard as "most untimely during the London naval conversations," the foreign office mouthpiece asserted.

The official's remarks were provoked by news from Washington that Representative Carl Vinson, chairman of the house committee on Naval affairs, is supporting the drive for immediate construction of the Nicaraguan canal.

This fact, coupled with Vinson's warning that America would build five ships to Japan's three, was accepted here as an attempt to frighten Japan into continuing the Washington treaty, which she is due to denounce this week.

OHIO TO CONTRACT 'CODE' COMPLIERS

The state of Ohio by an act of Legislature recently passed has definitely aligned itself on the side of code compliance and in support of those who are complying with their codes. No longer will the state be in the ridiculous position on the one hand of purchasing materials from a concern and on the other punishing such concern for violating its code in making the sale.

The new law (House Bill 102) provides that it shall be unlawful for any public agency to make a contract with or purchase any supplies from any person unless such person shall have filed with the public agency an affidavit if he is engaged in a business subject to a code, (1) that he is complying with all the provisions of the code, (2) that he has listed for taxation all property used in the production of the supplies and materials for which the contract is to be let, (3) and that he is complying with the workmen's compensation act. In case competitive bids are solicited each bidder must submit such an affidavit with each bid.

All contracts made on behalf of the State or any subdivision must stipulate that all materials or supplies to be used in the performance of the contract will be furnished by persons operating in compliance with their codes. Any contractor before purchasing or procuring supplies for the performance of his contract must procure such an affidavit from the person furnishing materials or supplies to him.

A form of affidavit to be used is set out in the law. It is made a criminal offense for a member of a public agency to make a false affidavit, nor can the contractor obtain his money until the affidavit is furnished.

SAAR CROWD SHOWS ANGER

British Officer Attacked After Automobile Hits Woman; Shots Fired.

SWARBRUECKEN, Dec. 17.—International policing of the potentially troublesome Saar plebiscite period was off to a decidedly unpropitious start today with a British volunteer policeman in hospital after a crowd beat him for hitting a woman with his car and wounding a Saarlander.

Capt. James Justice, the policeman involved, has been suspended, while Geoffrey Knox, Saar governor, has ordered police to investigate the affair "with all severity and trace the aggressor without regard to person."

According to the most reliable accounts, Capt. Justice and the Earl of Aylesford were driving a Fraulien Braun home from a party. Reversing his car, the Englishman ran over the curb and struck Frau Steg, who was not seriously injured.

Capt. Justice apologized, and offered to recompense the woman for her injury and damage to her clothing.

A crowd rapidly gathered, threatening the Briton and warning Frau Steg not to accept his money. Capt. Justice drew his revolver to cow the mob, who proceeded to beat him and Lord Aylesford in the melee, two shots were fired, one of which slightly wounded one Herr Neumeister.
